

Treasure Island in the Megaron Music Hall

On Thursday 22nd January I went to the Megaron Music Hall to see the play “Treasure Island” broadcast live from the Olivier Theatre of London, staged by the actors of the National Theatre. The book by Robert Louis Stevenson is about a boy called Jim whose family owns a hotel. However, in the play the role was played by a woman. At the beginning, everything is fine, but then a pirate comes into the hotel and changes Jim’s life. When Jim takes a treasure map in his hands, the adventure begins.....

I felt as if I was at the Olivier Theatre in England! It was a great play!
