

JO NESBO'S INTERVIEW

On 18th September we interviewed Jo Nesbo. We asked him about his life and his opinions on different subjects. We asked him four questions. I was the last to ask and my question was that: "You said you are a musician, too. Have you ever been tempted to compose music for children combined with a book for them?" I was nervous, but I understood everything he said. He said that one time he tried to play the guitar at his daughter's birthday party. When he started playing the guitar, his daughter left the room in embarrassment and the rest of the kids followed her after 30 seconds. Everybody in the room laughed! I laughed too! At the end of the interview, many professional journalists approached us and told us that our questions were the best! I'll never forget interviewing Jo Nesbo.
