

MEETING JO NESBO!

On Friday 18th September five children from our school's Primary 6 had a great experience: we met the famous Norwegian writer, Jo Nesbo! He was in Athens to give an interview about his new book. Our school was the only one that had the chance to send five students to take part in the interview. None of us could believe that we were going to meet such a famous author!

After we all arrived at the Megaron, we went into the interview hall, which was full of journalists. At the beginning of the interview, Jo Nesbo said a few words about himself. Then, the lady who was sitting next to him asked if anybody would like to ask questions and nobody raised their hand, so we grabbed our chance... After our first question the journalists took courage and started asking questions as well! Jo Nesbo was very happy to answer all of our questions.

When the interview was over, everyone was feeling proud and happy! At the end, we took a photo with Jo Nesbo and he also signed our books for the school library. When we were standing outside, a lady came and told us that everyone was impressed with our English and we thanked her!

It was an unforgettable experience that I think none of us will ever forget!!!
