

THREE SONGS ABOUT THE VIETNAM WAR

There were some artists in 70s and 80s who chose to write about the Vietnam war. These songs had a great impact on people. Here are three songs about the Vietnam war.

The first song is “Imagine”, by John Lennon.

This song talks about peace in the world. John Lennon imagines a world without war. This song is very popular around the world.

Another song which talks about this war is “Masters of war”, by Bob Dylan. In his coldest, most unrelenting protest song, Dylan spews a torrent of bile in the direction of the military-industrial complex and other “masters of war” responsible for the Cold War arms race.

The final song is “War”, by Edwin Starr.
Songs about war can't be written without war.
However, there aren't too many protest songs that also became No. 1 hit records.
Edwin Starr's anti-Vietnam rant achieved this feat in 1970.
