

Greek education system has undergone several effective changes throughout the years. School life starts early in Greece since kids are enrolled in the nursery school at the age of three. After this stage, pupils must go to the primary school at the age of 6. A primary school year consists of three terms with grading that ranges from 0-10. At the age of 12-15, students attend the junior high school which consists of two terms. Grading ranges from 0-20. Then, they attend senior high school (another 3 years with two terms). During the last year of the senior high school, students get prepared for the National Entrance University Exams.
