

THIMUN 2018...

Let's take things from the very beginning... When I first agreed to participate in this MUN, which would be my third, I was so nervous about how I would cope with all the demands of such a big and renowned conference. During all these hours I spent trying to write resolutions for the International Terrorism topic or the role of the International Criminal Court and the Criminal Accountability of UN Officials to Ombudsman Institutions I gained an invaluable amount of knowledge and details that, under other circumstances, I wouldn't have the chance to learn and which will help me in my future career.

And then, we arrived in The Hague... While walking to my committee on the first day, I felt very anxious because I didn't know anyone and I had to compete against native speakers. Slowly, I started making friends; I exchanged ideas and points of view with other delegates; I made amazing friendships, which I intend to keep for long and I had an unforgettable week debating on many interesting issues. During this period of time, I developed the ability to work in a collective environment, to exchange opinions with people from all around the world and not to be afraid to express my point of view with cohesion and logical arguments. THIMUN was a life changing experience, as I had so many opportunities to become a better person and expand my horizons.

Mando Xenidi